Project Idea:

I am still not 100% certain this is the path I want to go down. However, I would love to create an AR file management system. You see all the sci-fi movies and shows those UI's that they hold their hand up to and move stuff around to view maps and images and such. I want to create that but for computer management. If I am able to get file manipulation done, then I would love to work on doing visuals such as viewing images and such. Ideally this would be AR (something that if I commited my life to, you could put on glasses) but starting and doing this project in VR would suffice for simplicity and realistic goals.
